

Steven Novella, Body Snatchers, Phantom Limbs, and Alien Hands

1. How should a person react upon learning—through phenomena such as body switching, phantom limbs, and alien hands—that our brains are not objective perceivers of reality? What is the relevance to the search for truth of the fact that our brains construct an image of reality, as opposed to perceiving reality directly?