

Michael Shermer, Free Will and Moral Responsibility in a Secular Society

1. Explain Michael Shermer's position that there are degrees of freedom, which vary not only between humans and other animals, but also across different humans. Why does he find this to be a more useful way of thinking about free will than as an yes-no proposition?